Big Majorities for Anti-Prohibition Referenda in Three States—Democrats Claim Control of House—Governor Roosevelt Re-elected in New York by 750,000 Majority

Colorful Ruth McCormick Suffers Defeat in Illinois

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The United States, yesterday, went Democratic and against prohibition. Incomplete returns of the Congressional elections this morning definitely showed four Democratic gains in the Senate and half a dozen in the House of Representatives. The Republicans stood to gain one Senate seat. The Democrats needed ten gains in the Senate and fifty-three in the House to gain control of those bodies. With returns from three score Congressional districts still to be heard from, J. Louis S. House, Democratic campaign manager, claimed control of the House for the Democrats.

LONDON, Nov.—A majority of only thirty-one votes carried the Ramsay MacDonald Government safely through the first important division of the current parliamentary session late tonight.

This was regarded as a crucial test, for the balloting was on a motion by the Conservative party to amend the speech in reply to the Address from the Throne.

NARCISSI BULB GROWER WARNED OF NEW KILLER

Dreaded Eel-Worm Disease Makes Its Appearance in Victoria District

STANDARD TREATMENT NAMED BY DR. NEWTON

"We have secured evidence of the 'eel-worm disease' in narcissi in the Victoria district, and I want to take this opportunity of warning the narcissi growers of the seriousness of this disease," Dr. William Newton, of the Spanish Experimental Station told the members of the Victoria Horticultural Society at the city hall last night.

Dr. Newton said the eel-worm disease was one that had caused a great deal of destruction to bulbs in Holland and nearly wiped out the that industry, and advised the growers of this district to take every precaution to check the spread of the very destructive parasite. One of the peculiar traits of the disease, he said, was that it was always accompanied by basal end rot and described what remedy should be used.

STANDARD TREATMENT

"The best water treatment is the standard remedy. The bulbs are held for two hours in warm water at a temperature of 112 degrees Fahrenheit. This treatment kills the eel-worm and also the grub of the nematode fly, but does not control the basal end rot. The hot water treatment is frequently responsible for spreading the rot. A case was studied by the laboratory where 100 per cent of the bulbs were affected following the hot water treatment," he said. The remedy, however, is simple, Dr. Newton said. He advised a disinfectant, preferably Benlate, at the concentration marked on the package, be placed in the hot water bath. Corrosive sublimate tends to injure the bulbs, he said.

DISEASE OF PLANTS

In his address Dr. Newton dealt with disease such as tulip fire, current season infection, calomel formations, the diseases of roses and the degenerate diseases in ornamentals. On the latter he lectured at some length.

The meeting was attended by a large number of the members of the society, and a very fine display of "mums" was arranged in the auditorium, loaned for the occasion by member growers. Dr. A. G. Price, president of the society, was in the chair and announced the following prize winners for the monthly competition as follows: Floral section, E. M. Thornton, R. W. Paton; vegetables, A. M. Scott, G. Wallace.

to build highways in conjunction with a municipality, but surely when such a course was adopted it was only good business to say at the time to the municipality: "Here we have an anomalous condition in road building wherein we are about to assist you and kill our own railway in one section of your municipality; let us get together on this."

"But no—the expenditure went on to the extent of many thousands of dollars, and it was left to the present Government to settle with the municipality concerned, which was done, and a very fair settlement was made."

HELPED MUNICIPALITY

"In order to assist the Municipality of West Vancouver in the operation of its buses, the present Government passed an act exempting the Municipality of West Vancouver from the provisions of the Highway Act in connection with the operation of its buses, long as such operation and equipment remains in the hands of the municipality," added the speaker, who went on to tell of the value of this concession.

In addition, the Government had given assistance in the reconstruction of Marine Drive and Capilano Bridge, and he pointed out that Harry Briddman, Liberal candidate, was one of the delegation that sought aid for these projects. The former Government had been told that if the aid was given, that it could "for ever after wash its hands of the whole matter." The present Government had not imposed such a drastic proviso. It made a new deal and, "it is for such expenditures that we are now being criticized by the leader of the Opposition," remarked the speaker.

CHALLENGES LEADER

Mr. Pattullo had called the administration an "extravagant Government," declared Hon. Mr. McKenzie. "Will he name one project which the Government had undertaken that is extravagant or unwarranted?" demanded Hon. Mr. McKenzie. "This modern car, who by an Act of Parliament was given the powers of the Minister of Public Works in order to gratify his vanity and to enable him to expend money freely on the University Endowment funds."

"After he had spent huge sums on the Oliver project, he simply longed for more money to pay out."

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and grip and leave a depressed after effect.

Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's machinery to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, it starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect.

"ME AN' BERT"

Now me an' Bert is messmates or, in language wot becomes The high-falutin' Gentry, a pair o' "college chums!"

An' Bert an' me is handy, jest the same on sea as land. And is eekwally familliar with the Yukon as the "Rand." So, to us it weren't a sinkin' to the "epitaph" wot parsons preach. When we sees the "Saucy Sally" droppin' anchor off the beach. An' the Skipper soothes our conscience with an appetizin' sum. To ship along as deckhands, on the "Sally," rummin' rum.

Now molasses sure runs slow, but it's lightnin' by a "jammer." An' a month aboard the "Sally" left us scratchin' how to damn her. An' by time we hits the tropics, the bedbugs does their worst. Old Bert an' me's united in a most amazin' thirst. Which is Hell with all the trimmings, with the disconcertin' "kooze." That ther' lead an' lilies waitin', if we monkeys with the booze! So days go by, an' me an' Bert is dry enough to choke. An' damns that Skipper plenty, as a lousy sort of bloke. An' just as we's decided as well switch a quart or bust. We sees a cloud, no bigger'n a tiny speck o' dust.

By night we hits the belly of a roarin' hot typhoon. Which cloacin' lightning playin' tag across a grinnin' moon! An' the "Sally" goes a-waltzin' 'cross the ocean's heavin' guts To the scream in the riggin' an' the squakin' of the struts; An' the canvas starts a-splittin' an' the spars are naked bones. An' Bert an' me surmises how we's meat for "Davy Jones!" For close, an' "bore the elements" we're beginnin' to boom. An' wishes we wuz witches an' could navigate a broom. 'Cause a reef's the only article, so Bert an' me agrees To taper off the "picnic," same as "demmy-tasse," an' cheese! So, when the "Sally" crashes, t'ain't no "tempermental whim." Wot amalgamates our notions, appertains to a swim!

Now there ain't no explanation why Bert an' me alone Survives, without decedatory to any gay wot knew. Wot a lousy institution was the "late lamented crew." But me an' Bert's fergivin', an' when the weather calms. We sees we's in a paradise of coker-nuts an' palms. An' ain't we just der-lighted wot the "Saucy Sally" A-singin' to the coral, like a sailor to his gal!

"My Gawd!" sez Bert, excited, "Ther' a terribly by the yard. An' mush an' pork an' biscuits, an' a bottle 'twixt us an' land!" An' I butts in, regardless if his feelin's I abuse. An' sez, quite non-cavalant, "An' a little drop of booze. The which will be consolatin' to us wot far apart From 'Drumlyogues' and 'Opery,' an' 'Orchestra's' and 'Art!'"

We spends a week unloadin' an' piles a tidy stack. An' soon we's contemplatin' the buildin' of a shack. Which puzzles us a minute, 'till Bert begins a grin. "Would it suit yer 'Royal Highness' if we build it out of Gin? Which means we'll stack the cases so the walls is labeled 'Rye.' An' a floor of 'Johnnie Walker' an' a cellar, 'Gordon's Dry.' An' the banks of 'Old Kentucky,' so as sleep will be delight. On a 'Kreeme-de-Menthy' pillow an' a mattress, 'Black an' White.'

I chuckles, most agree'ble, an' afore the settin' sun. We fixed a joint wot might suggest an everlasting "fun." An' Bert, he gets a confusin', an' a bottle 'twixt us an' land. An' I just about to yank it, when I starts to grunt an' wheeze— For I feels a kind of drowinin', a sort of "liquid fear" Of "Kreeme-de-Coco" catarracts an' waterfalls of Beer. An' sees us lappin' likker from a cup cannot deny. An' "passin' out" an' wakin' up to cark another leg. An' I sees us chasin' vipers, in blue an' gold designs. An' crocodiles an' cuttle-fish with green an' purple lines: An' I see us blotched an' bloated, an' a-slobberin' to God To swap the blasted likker for the loan of a good rod. So, wile ol' Bert's a-singin' an' the cork's about to pop. I hollers, "Holy Murphy! Fer the luv of Satan—stop!" An' proceeds to "lighten Bertram with my latest philo-sophy: To let the likker percolate, an' concentrate on coffee!"

For nigh a year wot we marooned, an' 'spectin' plenty more. When breezes in, a Misadventure, "on roat" for Singapore. The which, that Godly Minister, explained to me an' Bert Wot a me heinous crime he's aimed to do it dirt! An' not for one split-second did his blasted pratin' cease On "Kingdom Come," an' "Angels," an' "Eternity," an' "Peace." While he stuffed us up with pamphlets, all on "Likker, How it Hurt You." An' ranted most alarmin' on the gals of "easy virtue." "Till Bert he decided, an' we reaches Singapore. We'll indulge in all the likker we can hold, an' maybe more!" The which, we done, an' afterwards, it struck us kind of queer. As how we'd been habstemyous for nigh nigh a year: But it seemed that Parson's roarin', "that drowinin' be done!" Was just as this productin' as the "Sally's" Skipper's gun! So Bert an' me's disgraced, an' has fixed a little motto: "Ferbid a feller drinkin', if yer want to get his blotto!"

An' me an' Bert is messmates or, in language wot becomes The high-falutin' Gentry, a pair o' "college chums!"

for his own schemes of town planning.

Continuing, the minister said that although he had never held the portfolio of public works, Mr. Pattullo had spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on roads, sewers, and other public works, and had planned further expenditures for cemeteries. How dared he speak of extravagance?

A British statesman had spoken of another, saying that "he would not care if London burned so long as he was made chief fireman." This quotation would be aptly applied to Mr. Pattullo, who indeed had built a new firehall for his endowment lands when there was one already in existence at the university close by.

In further referring to the P.G.E., Hon. Mr. McKenzie said that the opening of the Second Narrows bridge, which was a landmark in the transportation system of the locality.

BUS COMPETITION

"Before the bridge was built passengers could take the North Vancouver ferry and the P.G.E. to Horseshoe Bay. Auto traffic was restricted to the capacity of the ferries. In the construction of the bridge and the continuation of the highway the P.G.E. was automatically placed on the shelf for the time being as far as passenger service was concerned," he said.

"Some people think that the P.G.E. will be run to Ashcroft, and thus sidetrack the North Shore. But who was it that endeavored to find, and did find, a location for the Horseshoe Bay Auto terminal? It was the Liberal Government."

"As evidence of good faith as to the final location of the P.G.E., the Government is reconstructing the railway in the vicinity of Lillooet and building a permanent bridge over the Fraser at that point and incidentally will save by this operation a large sum annually."

The charge that T. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader, had attempted to bribe members of the P.G.E. to trade the votes of the people of North Vancouver on condition that the Premier would announce that construction of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway would be begun immediately, was made by Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Provincial Minister of Education.

Other speakers were Hon. R. W. Bruhn and the candidate.

No reference was made by the Minister to the seaplane base here, but it is understood a civil delegation will seek audience with him some time today on this subject, in regard to the foreshore rights at Erie Street.

SHAKESPEARE GREAT MUSIC ENTHUSIAST

Big Audience Last Night to Hear Musical Arts Society's Illustrated Lecture

In its unusually interesting series of programmes this Winter the Musical Arts Society happily included an evening with Shakespeare, the lecture part of which was wisely assigned to Mrs. E. C. Hayward. This programme took place last night at the Shrine Auditorium, the musical material which was used as illustration being arranged under Mrs. W. H. Wilson's direction, and Miss Mona Miller providing a group of dancers.

This made a distinctive entertainment which met with great favor from the audience. The singers were Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Miss Nora Jones, Frank Tupman, F. J. Mitchell and G. H. Llewellyn, whose delightful solo and concerted numbers were accompanied with much skill by Ira Dilworth; and the dancers, whose performance of the Old Mole, an old English country dance, was greatly enjoyed, were the Misses Ola Peetz, Helen Peden, Louise Simon, Isabel Dixon, Patsy Pierce and Eileen Scholten, with Miss Helen Ockenden at the piano.

A TRUE GUIDE

"Shakespeare was marvelously susceptible to sweet sounds," the lecturer noted. A true guide in respect of the music of his time, he was in process of being elected as a member of the Elizabethan days had for music and had indicated how greatly the art was cultivated by all classes. Then there had been profusions of music in the universities, and multitudes of teachers among the people, the king, the lord, the gentleman, artisans, "rustic clown and blind beggar" alike cultivating the art of singing or playing upon some of the numerous instruments of the day. Henry VIII had been devoted to music; Queen Elizabeth had a genuine delight in it, composing as well as playing, and keeping about fifty musicians in her court. Popular music, however, had not depended at all on royal favor. Everywhere one heard the lute, the cymbal, trumpet, drum, bass viol, and virginal.

Shakespeare had carried the spirit of his times into his plays. The "Winter's Tale" was made to record the custom of singing at sheep-shearing; in "The Taming of the Shrew" it was made apparent that music was one of the traditional accomplishments of the young ladies of the time; Mistress Page, discussing Falstaff's letter remarked that his disposition and words went as ill together as the Hundredth Psalm and Greenaloes; an old dancer; Grumio in "The Taming of the Shrew" had sung a catch song recalling a Mother Goose melody; in "Twelfth Night" another clown sings a love song in which Olivia, Sir Toby, and Sir Andrew join; even the deposed Duke was not denied music in the Forest of Arden, where the foresters entertained him, their songs forming a feature of the play.

THE ARTIST

Shakespeare had evidently believed in the power of music. Pauline employed it as an agent in restoring Hermione to Leonides. He had also felt the power of music to create atmosphere without any distinct images. Such was the effect of Ariel's songs; and of Ophelia's. King Henry IV interpreted the song which floated up to his lonely prison as his own life; and sweet slumber came to the pillow of the deeply religious Queen Katherine when she listened to music; in "The Tempest" music stilled the evil passions even of Caliban; Desdemona interpreted her vague fears by an ever-recurring melody.

THE ARTIST

The following delightful programme was given in connection with the lecture last night: "Autolycus" Song from "Winter's Tale." Mr. Frank Tupman; "Shepherd's Dance," The Old Mole, Miss Mona Miller's dancers; "O Mistress Mine," catch, from "The Taming of the Shrew," Mr. Llewellyn; trio, "Three Merry Men," Messrs. Tupman, Llewellyn and Mitchell; solo, "When I Was a Little Tiny Boy," Mr. Tupman; solo, "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind," Mr. Mitchell; duet, "It Was a Lover and His Lass," Mrs. Wilson and Miss Jones; solo, "Under the Greenwood Tree," Mr. Llewellyn; Desdemona's "Song of the Willow," Miss Jones; and "Lo! Hear the Gentle Lark," Mrs. Wilson, whose obligato Mr. Jones.

"I learned to dance ten years ago." "Oh, no wonder you have forgotten all about it."

LAKE COWICHAN, Nov. 4.—On Saturday afternoon, about noon, a very bad accident took place at McDonald & Murphy's camp when Carney Williamson was seriously lacerated around the lower part of his body by a straw line which whipped itself around his body.

He was given first aid at the camp and then brought in Norman Thomas' speedboat to the foot of the lake, where Dr. Moore, of Shawnigan, and Dr. Wallace Coburn, waited for him. From there he was taken in an ambulance to Duncan, where Dr. Garner and Dr. Blissett are in attendance on him.

ARABLE LAND IS VALUABLE PART OF PEACE AREA

Important Discovery Reveals Rich Agricultural Lands in North

GOVERNMENT REPORTS EXCEED EXPECTATIONS

Reports presented to the Government by Dr. W. H. Gaddes, chairman of the Land Settlement Board, and other officials who have made a special study of the Peace River area, show the newly acquired lands to be of far greater value than at first believed possible. Premier Tolmie stated yesterday.

Land that had been classed as forest reserve under Federal control was found to contain a high percentage of first-class agricultural property. Dr. Tolmie confirmed. While conditions at the present time do not tend towards rapid colonization of these areas, possession of the land would in later years be found of great benefit to the province, he concluded.

Dr. Gaddes was in the city on Monday to report to the Government and left for the Mainland after a conference with Hon. William Atkinson and other officers of the Government.

MANUFACTURING MAKES STRIDES

Canada Assisting in World Progress, Says B. C. Nicholas

LEADS IN MANY LINES

Concluding an inspiring and educational address on "Canada's Contribution Toward World Progress," before members of the Round Table Club at their dinner meeting at the Empress Hotel last night, B. C. Nicholas, told his listeners that Canada, through her leadership in early explorers, had made a great contribution to the progress of the world.

The speaker dealt briefly with the many different lines of manufacturing being carried on in Canada, and by figures showed conclusively that this Dominion was doing good work toward world progress from this angle. He cited the amount of goods manufactured in this country, valued in 1929 at $221,000,000, and showed by comparison of figures between that period and 1929 how Canada had been helping world progress. The country manufactured goods to the value of $3,500,000,000 last year, stated Mr. Nicholas.

PAPER IN LEAD

In dealing with the manufacture of Canada, the speaker dealt at more length with paper than with the many other subjects he touched on. Paper, said Mr. Nicholas, is the principal product of the Dominion, and this Dominion's output is the largest in the world.

Canada's trade is the largest per capita of any country in the world. Speaking of automobiles, Mr. Nicholas stated that there was a car to every nine people in Canada. This percentage is surpassed by but one country, the United States of America.

He spoke briefly on the extraordinary development of water power in Canada, and stated that Canada has led the world in this venture. Canada's timber resources were second only to those of Russia, while in the use of the telephone the United States was the only country that exceeded Canada. The speaker touched on many other industries and showed by actual comparison how Canada stood with other countries.

Mr. Nicholas spoke very briefly on the financial depression and stated that Canada is the first nation of all countries suffering from this depression to recover.

LITERATURE AND ART
While the steps made in manufacturing aided toward world progress, the speaker impressed on his listeners the need of Canada assisting in literature and art. Canada's manufacturing progress will die eventually when all her natural resources are used up, but her help toward world progress in literature and art would be something that time could never destroy, continued the speaker.

Colonel McGugin presided, while Dr. Douglas Graham, president of the Round Table Club, introduced the speaker.

Previous to Mr. Nicholas' address, H. Patterson, president of the members to the editorial content, now in progress, and reminded them that their editorial had to be presented at the next meeting of the club.

TRIAL OF MOUNTED POLICEMAN CHARGED WITH MURDER OPENS

DAUPHIN, Man., Nov. 4.—Liquor and beer-drinking and an exhibition of riotous shooting by former Constable Joseph Pirt, of the Dauphin Mounted Police, preceded the shooting to death of Mrs. Sophie Light, visitor from North Dakota, at an international picnic near here September 1, it was revealed by the first day of Pirt's trial for murder here today.

Pirt, stationed on highway traffic duty during the picnic, is alleged to have drawn his revolver and shot Mrs. Light, who died the following morning. Mrs. Light and her husband had driven to Manitoba to attend the picnic.

PUBLICITY WAS DISCUSSED BY BUREAU HEADS

Importance of Highways Brought Forcibly to Attention of Directors

DAVID LEEMING SAYS ISLAND NEEDS ROADS

The directors of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Public Bureau, at its meeting yesterday, considered a number of plans for the winter season, and for the coming summer, looking to the improvement of tourist travel. The president, David Leeming, in reporting upon the meeting of the Puget Sounders and British Columbians, gave the information that it was decided by that body to cut out the "Ask Mr. Foster" service.

In explanation, George I. Warren said that the hotels in the cities along the coast found this service a very valuable one and the feeling, as far as the Puget Sounders and British Columbians were concerned, was that there was no need to duplicate the service which was being got by the hotels direct. In the case of Victoria, he said this service had been found a very valuable one. It afforded information which was most useful as a follow-up for the bureau, and good results were being obtained therefrom. The proposal was to continue the service through the bureau.

Mr. Leeming laid stress upon the information given the meeting of the organization which had recently been held dealing with the subject of transportation by highways along the northern section of the United States. The meeting, said Mr. Leeming, had the expert advice of an automobile association official, who was present and who showed that the condition of the northern roads connecting with the east was such that it was useless to expect large numbers by that route.

BETTER ROADS NEEDED
Mr. Leeming felt that it was a good policy on the part of the bureau to lend every encouragement to the improving of these highways spoken of. Instead of an occasional auto from New York arriving here there would be thousands of them coming in if there were good roads.

In making the monthly payment of $2 solution to the non-pensioned inmates of the Aged Men's Home yesterday, Mr. Fred Landberg was assisted by Mr. J. W. Hudson, who contributed a humorous story to the acceptable entertainment. The number of inmates was twenty, but all the inmates were presented with cigars, the monthly donation of Mr. G. A. Merrick. The management acknowledges receipt of the following donations during the month of October: Fruit and vegetables Government House, Experimental Farm (per F. Landberg), St. Michael's Church and St. Columba's Church (per Rev. F. Conley); reading matter, Mrs. Radford, Mrs. A. P. Roy, Colonel Phillips, Mr. Nelson and A. Friend. Tickets to boxing and wrestling contests were given by the Tillikum Club per F. B. Richardson.

B.C. TO JOIN IN DISCUSSION ON AGRICULTURE

Federal and Provincial Departments to Consider New Policy

PROVINCIAL OFFICERS MAY MEET AT OTTAWA

British Columbia in all probability will be represented at the conference on Canadian agricultural problems called by Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, at Ottawa, on November 27, it was stated last evening by Hon. William Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture in the Tolmie Cabinet.

The idea behind the round-table discussion of Provincial ministers sponsored by the Federal department was a sound one, he said, and every effort would be made to have representation at the gathering on behalf of this province.

NATIONAL POLICY PLANNED
New departures in methods of agriculture are expected to develop from a conference to be held at Ottawa, November 27 and 28, between Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, and Ministers of Agriculture of the various provinces. The conference has been called in the hope of formulating a national agricultural policy.

Not only will the views of the Provincial ministers be presented at the conference, but suggestions from the various agricultural colleges will also be put forward. Major Weir has already been in communication with heads of colleges throughout Canada, inviting them to express their opinions.

FEDERAL PLAN IS OPERATING SMOOTHLY HERE

Total Cost of Work Authorized in Municipalities Is $1,268,150

SIXTY-FIVE CENTRES BENEFIT BY SCHEME

Emergency work programmes with a total cost of $1,268,150, half contributed by thirty-four British Columbia municipalities signatory to these plans, have been approved by the combined Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments. The municipalities concerned will pay up $634,075 towards the cost of the programmes, and the Federal and Provincial Governments $317,037.50 each, if all projects listed are proceeded with.

Agreements signed by Premier Tolmie this week ratified programmes of work submitted by Revelstoke and Port Moody. Revelstoke will receive $11,000 from the combined Governments towards work to cost $22,000; and Port Moody $3,750, for a programme to cost $7,500. Agreements signed by Peachland, Ladysmith, Vanderhoof and Nelson have been returned to the Minister of Public Works after municipal signatures had been affixed.

Sixty-five out of the seventy-five municipalities of the province have now reported under the Federal plan, thirty-four agreements being completely signed and in operation, four are pending, and seven others have been mailed for municipal signatures. Two British Columbia municipalities say they will not require help under the Federal scheme.

Meanwhile the Government is carrying out a programme of emergency work in the unorganized districts, sufficient to take care of any actual distress in these areas, independently of its arrangements with the municipalities. The percentage of unemployment in the province is steadily dropping, according to figures played before the Government after a careful survey of the situation.

FORMER KAISER AIDS DESTITUTE RELATIVES WITH DONATION OF $5

By OTTO BROOK (Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Service)

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Many words and little money has been the gift of former Emperor William II to his destitute relatives who were victims of the horrible mine catastrophe at Aldorf. The former emperor was personally involved in the tragedy as one of his godsons, William Flum, was the seventh child of a poor miner killed in the mine blast.

In the face of generous contributions from former Germany—even the poor helped as much as they could—the former emperor, still one of Germany's richest men, saw fit to help his godson's family to the extent of $5. To the burgomaster of Aldorf he sent a bombastic letter of condolence without a single cent.

RUNS FIVE MILES IN FORTY-SEVEN MINUTES AT 72

Not many men at 70 today, especially city men, can run five miles straight away, in any time. Yet, on January 28th, 1930, Dr. Robt. G. Jackson, at 72, did this in forty-seven minutes, before a large audience. It was only a matter of keeping the blood normally alkaline, or non-acid, which he does by eating alkaline food. To the burgomaster of Aldorf he sent a bombastic letter of condolence without a single cent. Now he has suspended his body between two chairs, resting on heels and head, with 180 pounds on his abdomen—a great feat at any age, but at 72, marvellous. Write for free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," and other literature, also sample of Roman Meal and Kofy-sub, the new alkaline beverage, to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 315 Vine Ave., Toronto 9 Ont. (Adv.)

BRITISH GOV'T WILL NOT DELAY ACTION ON TARIFF TRUCE PLANS

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The British Government today declined to accept the suggestion of a Conservative questioner that the so-called European tariff truce should be left in abeyance until such time as the attitude of the Dominions had been definitely decided.

Rt. Hon. William Graham, President of the Board of Trade, answering questions by his predecessor in office, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, admitted the importance of any representations the Dominions made, but that did not preclude the Government doing its very best to secure downward revision of European tariffs, he said.

P.G.E. POLICY UNAFFECTED BY ELECTION GUNS

Successful Negotiation for Disposal of B.C. Road Is Paramount

PREMIER TOLMIE HAS MADE ATTITUDE PLAIN

Whether North Vancouver today returns a Conservative, Liberal or Independent to fill the seat in the Provincial Legislature vacated by Capt. Ian Mackenzie on his assumption to briefly hold honors in the former King Cabinet, will have no effect on the policy of the present government in regard to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, Premier Tolmie stated yesterday.

"An attempt has been made to create an election issue in North Vancouver on the question of immediately extending the Pacific Great Eastern Railway," Premier Tolmie said. "On that point the attitude of this Government is clear. There is no issue in this matter at the present time, and the result of the vote at North Vancouver cannot possibly affect the P.G.E. The policy of the present Government will, of course, be carried on, whether North Vancouver returns a Conservative or not."

"Our attitude is simply this: The whole railway situation is in the middle of negotiations now, and we are awaiting a report on the resources of the Peace River Block, which was surveyed in detail during the past summer. When it is ready, and when Premier Bennett returns from Great Britain, this report and the whole future of the railway will be considered. Mr. Bennett having stated he would find a Pacific outlet for the Peace River country. Under these conditions we feel we should not make any commitments which would in any way jeopardize the negotiations."

"I can only say this last word to the electors of North Vancouver: If they elect Mr. Loutel, the Conservative candidate, they will have a representative who will be in constant touch with all matters and negotiations relating to the future of the P.G.E., a representative who will have the confidence of both the Federal and Provincial Governments," concluded Premier Tolmie.

SHIPS FROM ORIENT WILL ARRIVE TODAY

A visitor in the city yesterday from Vancouver was Pilot Gosse, who arrived to meet the Blue Funnel liner Ixion, due at William Head early this morning. After discharging local cargo and several Chinese passengers at Rihet Pier, the Ixion will proceed to Vancouver.

Unless delayed by fog in the Strait, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Sa. Yokohama Maru will dock at Queen Point Piers at 9 o'clock this morning from Japanese ports. After discharging cargo and six passengers here, the Yokohama Maru will continue to Seattle.

A MORATORIUM

One of Britain's Labor Members of Parliament wants his Government to send a "circular letter" suggesting that there should be a moratorium on inter-allied debts and reparations for five years. The "circular letter" idea would be about as effective as the chain prayer. Such a moratorium would involve France relinquishing present claims against Germany, which is unlikely and would, moreover, mean Britain would be relieved for the time being of payments to the United States, which is more unlikely still.

The "circular letter" is put forward as indicating a method of relief because of the present world-wide economic crisis. It may not have entered the head of the Labor Member responsible for the suggestion that the crisis has been fostered and prolonged just because the credit system has been strained to the breaking point. Some individuals and organizations have not only exceeded the expenditure warranted by their means but warranted by their expectations as well. It is no difficult matter to deduce from this one of the great contributing causes to economic depression. It will never be cured by the institution of a moratorium, for if Governments are entitled to such it would not be long before there was a similar demand on the part of individuals.

It is humiliating to think that a British Member of Parliament offers such a suggestion. It is more humiliating still to have the suspicion aroused that the suggestion may have come from the British Government itself. Neither Governments nor individuals should contract debts which they are unable to pay, or for the payment of which they require any longer terms than originally arranged. If that principle were followed economic crises could be avoided and it is a lesson as old as history itself. The best economic axiom of all time came from the lips of Mr. William Macomber when he said: "Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen, nineteen and six; result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds, ought and six; result misery."

ELECTION OF JUDGES

The elective system for judges, as illustrated at the polls yesterday in the United States, is one of the causes why the administration of justice has fallen upon such evil days in that country. Such judges, dependent on the people's vote, are subject to political pressure. The question has been raised more than once as to a change in this system and the introduction of the practice throughout the United States of the British way, a way which also obtains in Massachusetts, where judges are appointed for life, subject to good behavior. In Massachusetts it is found that there are few, if any, judicial scandals. The judges there are not subject to political pressure inasmuch as their positions do not depend on popular will. Inquiry shows that the Massachusetts judges have developed a tradition of probity and learning which is strongly in contrast with conditions on the Bench in those states where the elective system is in vogue.

The Americans have been speculating deeply on the causes which have led to their administration of justice falling into such disrepute, but they have done little or nothing towards reform. There is an ample supply of men in the country capable of acting as judges who would do honor to the administration of the law in any land. The trouble is that such men will not submit to the elective system. So long as that system prevails there is bound to be venality on the Bench.

DECLINE OF PIANO-PLAYING

Every reader of classified newspaper advertising must have noticed the increasing number of second-hand pianos offered for sale at bargain prices. In some instances the owners are more than willing to exchange their old "up-rights" for such useful articles as motor cars and dining-room suites. This same reader as he journeys along the lighted streets of his immediate neighborhood may occasionally catch the measured rhythm of piano music as mother or daughter thrums the ivory keys, but the chances are he is bombarded from almost every house with the jazy indiscretions of somebody's "Tritillating Troubadors!" Possibly these two experiences, when pieced together, make a story in which the piano has a melancholy and minor part. To what extent has professionalized, ready-made harmony, supplied by modern mechanical inventions, driven out the amateur musician, and hurried the luckless piano to the market-place? How many children today take lessons on the piano, patiently drumming out the notes with the five fingers of one hand?

For years the piano has inspired a host of young people to their best artistic accomplishments. It has nurtured the happy art of song and woven gaiety and beauty into the fabric of family life. Today, in many a home, the piano yields its honored place to the little sister, the radio. The radio and piano should have places in the same front room. The first brings melody from the far places and is in a position to build intelligent appreciation of worth-while music, while the piano challenges the individual performer to evoke his own harmony from its keys.

THE HIGHER TARIFF

From all parts of Canada reports are accumulating of the benefits of the Bennett tariff. It takes some little time for manufacturers to adjust their outlook to the new benefits accruing to them, but they are rapidly accommodating themselves to the changed conditions which mean greater production in the country, more employment and an expansion of home markets which will eventually bring about the restoration of prosperity. The Fergus News-Record says the higher tariffs have resulted in bringing another industry to the town and that Buckeye incubators will now be made there. Commenting on this The Toronto Mail and Empire says: "Other towns, great and small, in many parts of the country can report similar developments. Textile and woolen plants, which have been running on part time, are now going full blast. Disused plants are getting once more under way. So marked has been the change in certain important centres that a shortage of textile workers is already reported. One woolen mill is asking permission to bring in skilled workers from the Old Country. As a result of action taken by the Government at the emergency session, the railways are taking on thousands of additional hands. These encouraging developments may be regarded as only a beginning of the benefits which will gradually accumulate as the effects of the Bennett Government's constructive policies come to be felt. Some time must elapse before the country experiences the full results of the fiscal revolution recently inaugurated. The advantages will be cumulative and they will spread from Halifax to Victoria. The all-Canada forward movement is likely to derive an added impetus from the negotiations which the Prime Minister is carrying on for the marketing of Canada's grain and for the extension of intra-imperial trade."

One of the few measures of economy which are in contemplation for this continent is the new golf ball. It is to be a trifle larger and a trifle lighter than the present ball. Even the world's greatest hitters will not be able to hit it as far as they do the ball now in use. This should mean economy in the conduct of golf courses and make the game cheaper. For instance, there should no longer be any necessity of lengthening holes for the benefit of the best players. One of the most expensive items in golf is the establishment of new greens. The only defect in the new ball is that it has a tendency to slice, possibly because it has less resistance in the air. It is an experiment and a worthy one in depressed times when too much money is spent on amusements.

Scotland has the best non-skid roads in the world. A road surveyor explains the reason for this as follows: "The whole secret of the process is a special mixture of bitumen and a very large gravel of about three-quarter inch. We do not flood our roads with tar as they do in many places. Another factor is that the country owns its own quarries of Whinstone and they are the most up-to-date quarries in the country. Everything is done by direct labor. The cost is from 21-2d to 31-2d per square yard, according to the distance the material has to be transported. The treatment not only produces a non-skid surface but prevents "waving" and the development of pot holes. Even when it rains there is practically no danger of skidding on the wet surface when treated by this process."

A new word has been coined in Great Britain to describe Labor policies when translated into action. It is "Robin Hood legislation," the robbing of one class to give the plunder to another. Its sequel is more and more unemployment. The problem which Mr. Ramsay MacDonald will have to face at his next election is twice as onerous as one as to that for which he promised a solution prior to being elected to power.

ROMANCE OF ASTRONOMY

Canadian scientists are noted for their modesty, but we have rarely seen that virtue so carefully concealed as it is in an article in the current issue of Natural Resources, upon the tenuous gases in the spaces between the stars. It is stated that the presence of these gases, previously indicated and discussed by others, was definitely proved at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, B.C., about seven years ago. We add, for a reason which will become apparent, that this work was due to Dr. Plaskett, the director of that observatory. Three years later, Sir Arthur Eddington, professor of astronomy at Cambridge, was led by the proof made at Victoria to investigate theoretically the physical properties of this gaseous matter. One of the conclusions he reached was that, though the external space was so cold that a solid body placed in it would fall to about 400 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, the molecules of these diffuse gases were so far apart that the radiation from all the stars would drive speeds in the molecules corresponding to a temperature of about 20,000 degrees. But Prof. Eddington's conclusions were based on the assumption that these rare gases were uniformly distributed in the space between the stars, and there was no proof of this uniform distribution or knowledge of the motions. "The final observational completion of the whole structure," says Natural Resources, "has been provided at Victoria, where it has been definitely proved that this diffuse gaseous matter is uniformly distributed throughout the stellar system. It was a striking example of the effective combination of theory and practice, and Natural Resources adds that the proof may justly be considered one of the romances of astronomy and an important Canadian contribution to science. We do not know what members of the staff of the observatory at Victoria were associated with Dr. Plaskett in this work, but his name as director of it should be connected with this romance.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Conscience has no more to do with politics.—Sheridan.

A lady told us a day or two ago that she did not understand politics and therefore was not interested in political questions. We harbor a suspicion, possibly an unworthy suspicion, that if the majority of women were as candid as our lady friend, they would also admit that they did not understand politics and therefore were not interested in political questions. In these progressive times, when women have votes and are entitled to sit in Parliaments and Legislatures, if they can "make the grade," it is sometimes steep, we submit that it is unfortunate that as many women as men are not interested in politics.

In confidence, we may tell the women that they need not study "the science of government" very hard to obtain as profound a knowledge of politics as the majority of men. And for the enlightenment of all women, we can tell them that while the science of government under existing conditions may not be an exact science, it is a very interesting subject for discussion and contemplation when you give it your intelligent consideration. There is not a country in the world today that is not tinkering with the science of government, and tomorrow or the day after there may not be a people in the world that is not ready to admit that it is making a terrible mess of the abstract science of government.

In Canada today an interesting experiment is being made in the science of government. A few months ago the people of Canada, women as well as men, decided that they wanted a change of Government. The change was made almost in record time, and while we may have the utmost confidence in the result, we are willing to admit that the ultimate result of the experiment cannot be determined in a month or possibly in a year. The women of Canada, who womanfully assisted the men in making the change, should be quite as deeply interested in the result of that experiment as the men are. Now is the time for the women to discard their attitude of profession of indifference, read the political news and views in the newspapers, and become permanently interested in politics, which is the science of government.

Furthermore, as we have pointed out, there is not a nation in the world today which has not a political pot on the fire. The fires under all those pots are burning brightly and the contents of the pots are boiling and bubbling furiously. Our American neighbors are in the throes of a political upheaval which we would call a general election. The United States electorate cannot as the result of their election throw a Government out and put a new Government in their institutions are not sufficiently flexible or responsive for that, but they can express loss of confidence in the President, who is the head and maker of the Government. We expect the American electors will pass a vote of lack of confidence in the Government they elected with such enthusiasm two years ago; but they cannot turn that Government out for another two years, and the Government will not actually resign for about another six months after that. There is an interesting point for the women to make a note of—the difference in point of effectiveness and responsiveness to expressions of public opinion between the political systems of Canada and the United States.

If the science of government in countries where the will of the people is supposed to be the determining factor is nothing to become clamorously enthusiastic about, there are many countries in the world where establishing and maintaining Governments is an exciting business. Years ago China was released from foreign political bondage, and the emancipated Chinese have been fighting like cats and dogs ever since for the alleged purpose of establishing government for and by the people. A short time ago there was a general demand throughout the republics of South America for changes of Government. The Governments in power closed their ears to the demands of the common people, and some liberators appeared and in the name of the people threw the Governments out. That is an exemplification of the science of government as it is applied to the republics of Latin America. At that, government in the Latin republics may be nearer an exact science than in the United States or even in Great Britain. It is swift in action under certain circumstances, whereas in the United States it is always doubtful in action, and in Great Britain it frequently permits a Government to remain in power for a long time after it has lost the confidence of the people and is a menace to the welfare of the Empire.

The present Government of Italy was not originally based upon the will of the people. It was established by a dictator, but if merits are to be judged by the principle of results, it is a more scientific Government than any Government Italy has had for very many years. But the weakness of the scientific Government set up by Mussolini is that its life depends upon the length of days of one man—and the hot-blooded people of the Sunny South sometimes adopt summary measures when a great Caesar arises who is considered too ambitious.

Considering what is going on in the world today and what may happen almost any day, politics today is the most interesting study of mankind and should be the most interesting study of womankind.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michells

ILLUSION is the shining web we weave
To make our days the brighter,
To add a glamour to the life we live,
It first wrought wonders in our nurses' tales,
The fairy sceptre and the prince's kiss,
And all life through its potency
To paint a world more kind and fair than this.

Yet who would ask no more than childish things
After the carefree days of youth
As though a bird should fold its untied wings,
Renounce the sky and, creeping,
Illusion satisfies the coward heart:
The brave want truth, truth wholly, not in part.

How B.C. Joined Canada

Story of Confederation as Told by The Colonist, Which Championed the Cause of Union

By NINA NAPIER, M.A.

PART XXIII

The Amendment in Favor of Delaying Confederation Is Passed in the Council

WITH what feeling of bitter disappointment Amor De Cosmos must have listened to the debate, which showed very clearly that the majority of the members of the Council not only wanted the union delayed but appeared to look at the whole proposition with disfavor. His campaign of months, his speeches, his letters to the press, would have been crowned with success by the passing of the address to the Imperial Government. His speech was bitter when he rose to refute the arguments of the speakers for the amendment.

Was it any wonder, he asked, that the people were discontented with the existing Government when their own representatives were traitors to their best interests? Were these people to legislate for a country, who voted away, and then said they were mistaken and voted another, while some were silent and others absent altogether?

The committee at Victoria had taken matters into its own hands, as it had a perfect right to do, when it saw that Confederation had not received, and was not likely to receive, proper consideration by the Government. To be true to themselves, they had now one duty to perform, they must put no further trust in this administration of paid officials, for two-thirds of the Council held salaried positions. If the Council rejected the measure, it did not represent the people, and it would be his own deliberate purpose, said the speaker, to secure Confederation, so that the colony might have a government based on the confidence of the people. If necessary, he himself, would carry the question of union not only to the Canadian but to the Imperial Government.

De Cosmos went on bitterly to attack the administration which kept up an enormous staff of officials and reduced the sums appropriated for education and charity, calling its action retrenchment. Canada could do without such a colony, loaded at it was with debt and only able to vote the paltry sum of $6,000 for educational purposes.

Dismissing the opposition to the union raised on the grounds that the territory between the Rocky Mountains and Canada was still unopened, the speaker said that the Hudson's Bay Company would place no obstacle in the way of British Columbia's admission. The Imperial Government, itself, would guarantee the construction of the Overland Road, and Canada well knew that the road must be built to consolidate the Dominion.

Ten years before, said De Cosmos, he had predicted a Confederacy of all the countries in British North America, and now there could no longer be any doubt that union with that Confederacy was the destiny of British Columbia. The colony had found staunch friends in the East, among the men whose nation would soon extend westward. Should the Council refuse its acquiescence now, it would be immaterial, for as sure as God was in heaven and the sun would rise, so surely would Confederation stretch from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

In conclusion, he asked permission to withdraw the resolution and address, but this was not granted. The amendment, being put to the Council, was carried, only four out of the sixteen members present voting against it—De Cosmos, Stamp, Robson and Walkem.

$20,000 NEEDED

Sir.—The appeal by the Red Cross and the Armistice Period Committee joint campaign to raise $20,000 in our city and adjoining municipalities to relieve the veterans and their dependents when in dire distress, should not be ignored by the community.

The problems of the Armistice Period Committee are many. Helping those who receive inadequate pensions; helping those who, through their anxiety to hurry back home to their loved ones, declared themselves physically fit, but the small disability which existed then unfortunately became worse and worse as time went on. The Pensions Board, as you no doubt know, would not and did not recognize these claims. The Armistice Period Committee did all it possibly could to render help, but owing to lack of funds, could not do very much. There are many, many heart-rending cases which cannot be enumerated here.

The Red Cross peace-time work is, of course, known to all. The society carries on the work year in and year out, the world over, and the work which it does is not, and never was, duplicated by any other organization in the world. That is the reason why the Red Cross Society should receive the generous support of the public to enable it to carry on its work. The society is establishing outpost nursing stations in isolated districts where there is no hospital doctor or graduate nurse in attendance. If the nursing station were nonexistent, it would mean great suffering accompanied by loss of life. There are usually some returned men settling in isolated districts endeavoring to build up homes for themselves and their families in that new country, who need medical assistance.

Friends, we cannot, and we must not, turn a deaf ear when we are trying to serve those who gave their all during the war. Let us join hands and work and pull together, and give all we possibly can to make this joint campaign for these organizations a great success.

In the belief that some person who wished to help this worthy cause has not been visited by our society, we would ask you to mail your subscriptions to the Red Cross and Armistice Period Committee Joint Campaign, 317 Belmont House, Victoria, B.C.

Chairman,

RED CROSS NEEDS
Sir.—I understand that some inquiries have been made as to why the Red Cross Society in British Columbia is at present in greater need of support from the public than it has been for some years past. The explanation is simple.

At the Armistice, the Red Cross head office at Toronto found itself in possession of a large sum of money which, had the war continued, would have been sent overseas. From this fund grants have been made to some of the provinces from year to year to assist them, until they became self-supporting, in carrying on the peace-time work which all the nations who signed the Treaty of Peace pledged themselves to undertake.

Up to the end of 1928 British Columbia received in this way grants amounting to upwards of $230,000. The central fund has now been exhausted and each province must rely upon its own resources for the future.

Last year the head office of the British Columbia division, which up to that time had been located at Vancouver, closed down from lack of funds and the executive agreed that it should be reopened at Victoria.

torio, being the capital. Contributions from citizens of Victoria and Vancouver, as well as a grant from the Provincial Government, have enabled it to carry on up to the present time, but its treasury is now nearly exhausted and it must rely upon the result of the present campaign and one to be carried on shortly in Vancouver. It is to be enabled to continue its work.

The contrast between the large sums contributed to the Red Cross when our boys were struggling to save us from the financial ruin, both public and private, which German victory would have involved, and the meagre contributions up to the present for those who suffered so much in its accomplishment, is a sad commentary on our sense of gratitude.

Let us change all this and, by a generous response to the present appeal, show that we really are not ungrateful.

TRAFALGAR

Sir.—In your issue of October 31, Mr. A. Campbell correctly insists that the phrase "one of the greatest of England's naval engagements," should read "one of the greatest of Britain's naval engagements." Such mistakes are regrettable, but they usually arise, not from ignorance, or illiteracy, as Mr. Campbell seems to imply, but from a thoughtlessness which is at least free from intentional offence. In a broadcast address an eminent American recently referred to the Prime Minister of England. As for Nelson's famous signal, the probability is that the admiral and his crews were too intent on the business in hand to indulge in hair-splitting.

Though Mr. Campbell keeps an alert eye on your columns—strictly, of course, in the interests of historical accuracy—and from time to time points out these little lapses, he appears to have overlooked quite a crop of them which occurred about two months ago in an account of another naval engagement of some importance—the affair of the Spanish Armada. Throughout this article the writer consistently refers to ships and crews as "British."

The ship Calceuth, which recently struck the rocks by sailing too close to shore on her way to the Sound and was thereby somewhat damaged, was towed to St. Helens and surveyed. It was found that her foremast was gone and she was otherwise damaged. Mr. de Serres told me the men will be required to put her in condition to sail for San Francisco.

WAR VETERANS OF EMPIRE TO HOLD MEETING
British Service League Members Will Convene in Canada Next August

EARL JELICOE WILL HEAD THE DELEGATES

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Representatives of all returned soldier organizations of the Empire will meet in Canada next August when the fifth biennial conference of the British Empire Service League will be held. It was announced here by Lieut.-Col. L. A. Lafleche, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion.

Led by Earl Jellicoe, admiral of the fleet and presiding officer of the league, delegates will come from the British Isles, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and from every corner of the far-flung Empire.

In making the announcement, Colonel Lafleche said the only definite plan was that the meetings would be held at such a time and in such cities as to permit the whole delegation taking part in the warrior day celebration of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

When the last biennial conference of the British Empire Service League was held in London in 1929, Canada sought the next gathering. There was competition for this honor from other Dominions and a decision was withheld. Tonight Colonel Lafleche received a cablegram announcing Canada's invitation had been accepted. Earl Jellicoe presided at the meeting today which made the decision.

LARGEST GATHERING
At the London conference twenty-three countries in the Empire were represented and it is expected there will be at least that number that will send delegates to next year's gathering. The British Empire Service League is an organization of returned veterans, branches of which are in every part of the Empire. The Canadian branch goes under the name of the Canadian Legion. The conference will be the largest gathering of returned soldiers ever held in Canada.

VICTORIA TO SYDNEY BY PHONE; COST $57

Capital City is Now Linked Up With Service to Australia Via England

Victorians, if they have the desire and also the cash, may now telephone to Australia. It is announced by the British Columbia Telephone Company. The commercial telephone service between New York and Australia has been extended to Seattle and to Victoria, making one of the longest circuits in existence. It is stated:

It is estimated that a call from Victoria to Sydney would travel about 17,500 miles. Leaving Victoria the message would go to Vancouver and from Vancouver to Seattle to New York. From New York the conversation would be radiated across the Atlantic to London, England, and from that metropolis again by radio to Australia.

All of this would cost $57 for the first three minutes, $19 for each additional minute or fraction of a minute and a $5 call charge if the party called could not be reached.

CLUBMEN HEAR C. W. LONSDALE
Headmaster of Shawnigan Lake School Addresses Kiwanis Club Members

EDUCATION IS SERVICE

"There is a tendency to define education as an examination standard reached by the acquisition of knowledge from textbooks, while a truer definition would be a preparation for social obligations to the world," said C. W. Lonsdale, headmaster of Shawnigan Lake School, in addressing the Kiwanis Club at its luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

"Most of us were the subjects of educational experiments in our own youth," went on Mr. Lonsdale, "and we are inclined to insist upon the same process for our sons, although it is doubtful whether the majority of these experiments equip a boy for the ordinary battles of life."

"Scholarship should consist only of subjects which require a greater amount of mental effort than is essential for their mastery. One can never reach an ultimate perfection in such things as languages, history, geography, mathematics and science. Typewriting, on the other hand, is purely mechanical, and, once the manipulation of the machine has been mastered, it is simply a question of 'practice makes perfect.'"

PERSONALITY
The speaker wondered how many abnormally brilliant scholars ever achieved fame after leaving the university.

The really great man, he said, had more than scholarship. He had personality and character, which included such qualities as truth, loyalty and integrity. When these great essentials were combined with scholarship the ideal man was evolved.

"In British Columbia," continued the speaker, "we have as fine a type of citizen as may be found anywhere in the world; and we should educate our sons to take their rightful place in giving social service to the universe."

PHYSICAL FITNESS FIRST
Mr. Lonsdale spoke briefly of the system on which was based the training of the boys at Shawnigan Lake. This, he said, was built upon three great essentials: physical fitness, moral tone and school work.

Physical fitness fell naturally into first place, since a boy needed to be physically fit in order to assimilate mental teachings. Everything was done to cultivate an appreciation of the beautiful, said the speaker, since it was a recognized fact that every child was susceptible to aesthetic influence.

In the matter of physical training stress was laid upon all team games, which taught a boy lessons in unselfishness which were of untold value in his after life.

T. Stevenson gave a two-minute talk on "The Kiwanis Club as a Means of Forming and Retaining Friendships." The organization, he said, endeavored to give services which were more easily rendered by a corporate body than by an individual.

VICTORIA BIDS FOR PRAIRIE WINTER TOURS

Results Have Already Come From Advertising Campaign Inaugurated

CITY AND VANCOUVER ARE CO-OPERATING

Victoria has inaugurated its campaign for winter travel from the Prairies. The Victoria and Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau on October 28 started its advertising there, and as a result of the first publication several inquiries have been received, said George I. Warren at the luncheon meeting of the directors of the bureau yesterday.

In addition to this, O. Hollingsworth is leaving on Monday on a tour which will take him by way of the C.N.R. East to Winnipeg and back by the C.P.R. and will extend about six weeks. He will visit the principal centres along the routes and endeavor to popularize Victoria and Vancouver Island in the public mind.

Mr. Warren said that this year the bureau was co-operating again with Vancouver in a system of publicizing the space was being taken in the daily papers and also in the farm publications. The campaign is to cost $600. Advantage was being taken of the fact that the winter announcements each day following the stock quotations and the weather reports.

Attention was called to the new time tables of the C.N.R. which advertised Victoria very fully. On one side was the Empress Hotel, while on the other was advertising matter relating to Victoria, with the legend, "Follow the Birds to the Evergreen Playgrounds."

Authority was given Mr. Warren, as vice-president of the Canadian Association of Tourist Bureaus, to visit Winnipeg for the meeting of the organization, which is taking place there.

GARBALLY ROAD

fur trader at Whillwater, about five hundred miles north of Prince George, Mrs. Overn had the contents of her post seized by the sheriff under a writ of execution. The goods were subsequently sold at a sheriff's sale to Hudson's Bay Company. She alleged that the seizure and sale were illegal. A Supreme Court jury, in a trial conducted by Chief Justice McCreight, awarded her $11,000 damages.

VOCATION

THE spinning-wheel, whirring far into the night, provided the accompaniment to our grandmother's lullaby, for her work never ceased. In those days, people were born to work or they were born to play, and the dividing line was seldom crossed.

The new household servant—electricity—by performing much of the housework that was formerly done by the housewife, has made it possible for her to devote more and more hours of the day or night to social duties and even to political affairs. Nowadays, it is not only the Duchess who is a leader of community thought and activity—modern society is benefiting from the rich experience of individuals from all walks of life.

Certainly, to-day, woman's vocation is to wield an influence not only in her primary field, which is the home, but also in national and civic affairs. There she has the opportunity to weave into our social fabric those designs and patterns which benefit ourselves and our children.

PACKED HOUSE HEARS RAYMOND

Hundreds Listen to Fascinating Address by Author of "The Jest Army"

HUMOR IS PREDOMINANT

"These were the men who were the real truth of England: They have written for ever that their heart is humorous and kind."

In these words, Ernest Raymond, author of "The Jest Army," "The Jest Army," and many other well known novels, summed up his address to a packed house in the First Baptist Church last night.

Mr. Raymond, whose lecture was given under the auspices of the Council of Education, was introduced by the chairman, General Sir Percy Lake.

The speaker based his address upon his latest novel, "The Jest Army," which, as the chairman explained, compares favorably with the majority of recently written "war books," with their "foul libels, which besmirch the nation, just as they besmirch the British soldier."

It was not in the character of the Englishman bragging about his own country that he came before last night's audience, said Mr. Raymond, but rather as a tremendously interested student of national genius.

HUMOR DOMINANT QUALITY
England, he continued, formed the most amusing study of all. Humor was her dominant quality to such an extent that she had decided that her more honorable emotions, if they were allowed to express themselves at all, should do so in inverted form. This idea she carried out, to the immense confusion of other nations and, sometimes, to herself.

"Have you ever conceived of a British battalion going into the line, singing 'Rule Britannia'—just as other nations marched to their national songs," asked the speaker. "The probability is that any battalion you care to mention is singing, 'When this ruddy war is over,' to the tune of 'What a Friend We Have in Jesus.'"

"The British soldier, moreover, was the most humane of any who served on the various fronts, although he would generally stigmatize 'humanity propaganda' as 'bilge.'"

"THE JESTING ARMY"

Mr. Raymond referred to a number of examples of the spirit of the English soldier drawn from "The Jest Army." He spoke of a scene in 1918, when troops were climbing the gangplank of a ship bound for Gallipoli, speaking of the chaff and back-chat which flew from mouth to mouth. "The boat was crammed full of soldiers as a market cart is full of apples."

From this point the address took the form of a series of scenes, each one of them fascinating in its conception, which conjured up the four years of horror and heroism.

A glimpse was given of the deserted lounge of a troopship where "Tony," an irrepressible Irish blood, conquering his English reticence, demands an explanation of fundamentals. The explanation of the thinly-veiled character in book is that, "We fought for England because she is so small and so neighborly, and is replete with a consequent spirit of tolerance."

FOOTBALL IN THE DESERT

The speaker described a football match on the Desert of Sinai in 1916, while the "Royal West-Exes" were waiting for the Turkish attack. The players were the officers and "non-coms." The "non-coms" were wearing the red, white and blue stripes, according to the regimental wag.

"Whistles, cat-calls, tin cans and other inharmonious instruments were kept in subjection until the ball reached the feet of the regimental sergeant-major, when pandemonium was unchained."

Mr. Raymond spoke of the remarks which came from the touch-line and wondered whether there would have been possible in any other army.

The solution was that it was impossible to subject a fighting unit to a surfeit of repression. Resentment against the sergeant-major and his satellites must have an outlet in laughter.

WOULD STILL BE THERE

"During the war," said Mr. Raymond, "this army of England grumbled and growled and vented its spleen against the prevailing conditions. But it endured; and it had been necessary, it is my firm conviction that it would still have been squinting in the mud of Flanders."

The last, and perhaps the most impressive picture, which Mr. Raymond drew, was an officers' dugout on "that terrible night of vigil" before the big German attack in March, 1918.

The speaker made the audience see the weary but indomitable stagers and the latest export of a British public school, as yet untouched by the tragedy inseparable from war. It was a scene distinctly reminiscent of "Journey's End."

The most remarkable touch, however, was found in a telephone call between the company commander and the adjutant who had rung up within a few hours of the expected combined attack to test the lines.

"Just rang up to see if everything is all right."

"Yes, I say, it is really coming?"

"Who?"

"Him."

"Yes, we've just heard definitely. Cheerio, old son."

"Chin-chin."

DEBATERS TO MEET BRITISHERS NAMED

Capt. H. Allan and John O. Fisher Are Winners in Elimination

From a field of six contestants representing various local organizations, Captain Hugh Allan, of the Effective Speaking Group of the Chamber of Commerce, and John O. Fisher, of the Civil Service Literary and Debating Society, gained the right to represent Victoria against the visiting British team at the Chamber of Commerce on November 26, in the eliminations staged last night.

The contestants spoke on the question which will be debated here tonight, the English team, namely, "Resolved: That this meeting favor a tax on bachelors."

The contestants, in addition to the winners, were: W. Skilling, Oyo Club; Percy Watson, Rotary Club; A. H. Spurr and Frank Carls, of the night class of the Victoria High School.

His Honor Judge Lampman, B. C. Nicholas, editor of The Victoria Daily Times, and Professor E. S. Parr, Victoria College, acted as judges. The same men will officiate at the debate here on November 26 between Captain Hugh Allan and John O. Fisher and members of the British debating team.

Just Roamin' Around

"When I was a youngster at school, Rover, in the '80's, and when your several great-grandfather was my chum, 'Balu' was the dear old fellow's name, we used to spend all our spare time, out of classes, collecting stuff and rubbish, etc., for one grand big bonfire on Guy Fawkes Day, the Fifth of November."

One of the events we British old boys think of today happened long ago in King's mead, on November 5, in the year 1605. Also, on November 5, 1688, the Prince of Orange landed at Torbay, on the Devonshire coast. He was afterwards crowned King—William III. And, in 1854, on November 5, the first and conclusive battle of the Crimean War between Great Britain and France versus Russia was fought, and is known as the Battle of Inkerman.

The chief conspirators of the plot to blow up the King, Lords and Commons by gunpowder were Robert Catesby and Everard Digby. The conspirators made in the great secrecy, took eighteen months, and not a whisper got out. A cellar underneath the House of Lords was hired, thirty-six barrels of powder placed there, coal and wood stoves over these, and the doors thrown open. No one suspected anything. A few days before the appointed time, an anonymous warning was received by Lord Montagu, stating: "The Parliament shall receive a terrible blow and shall not see from whose hand it comes."

At the council meeting, held to make King's mead the first to guess that gunpowder was meant. On searching the vaults a Spanish officer named Guy Fawkes was found preparing the matches for the following morning, November 5, the day fixed for the dreadful crime. All the conspirators were finally brought to justice and suffered death.

In an old English prayer book of mine is "A Form of Prayer with Thanksgiving, to be used yearly upon the fifth day of November, for the happy deliverance of King James the First, of Great Britain of England, from the most traitorous and bloody-intended massacre by gunpowder, and also for the happy arrival of His Majesty King William the Third, the day for the deliverance of our church and nation. The minister of every parish shall give warning to his parishioners publicly in the church at Morning Prayer, the Sunday before, for the due observation of the said day. And after Morning Prayer, or preaching, upon the said Fifth day of November, shall read publicly, distinctly, and plainly, the Act of Parliament made in the third year of King James the First, for the observation of it."

Here, Rover asked me if Guy Fawkes was an ancestor of mine. "Why?" said I. "Well," Rover replied, "the latter returned young lady at the restaurant we so often frequent on our roamin' around, said: 'You master a 'well guy'?"

Our kick follows: The word "guy," which in our youth meant "an effigy to be hanged or burnt," is now misused, by the inventor of the refined, denote a person whose name is not necessary to recall specifically at the moment of conversation; and thus used, it is a converse than slang expression. A guy is in marine affairs, a rope attached to anything to steady it, and bear it one way and another in hoisting or lowering. We wonder?

Of little grains of powder, in little bits of gun.

Won't grow hair—any more!

TWO TYPES OF HOSPITALS SEEN

Large and Cottage Units in Vogue for Mental Cases in Europe

Two distinct types of psychopathic hospitals are to be found in Europe, Henry Whitaker, chief architect for the Department of Public Works, has reported to the Government, as a result of his recent tour, undertaken preparatory to the drafting of plans for a new British Columbia institution, when required. One is the cottage unit plan, as seen in Louvain, and the other the large unit system, popular in Germany. English institutions, generally, are on the cottage plan.

The admission hospital is usually separate from the mental hospital, although on the same site, he reports. Patients are given psychopathic treatment before admission to the mental hospital proper, and, if there is any chance of recovery, they are admitted to the mental institution. No out patients are treated, as the hospitals are usually isolated from communities by several miles.

The best psychopathic hospitals in continental Europe are to be found in Germany and Belgium. Mr. Whitaker reports, those at Frankfurt and Munksgaard, in Germany, and Louvain, in Belgium, being the latest and most modern. The chief architect made a careful study of these and the very best materials given returned with much practical data as a result of his mission.

European conditions of unemployment were far more severe than anything noticeable on this continent. Mr. Whitaker found, while textile and similar operations are running at half their normal volume, United States Western fire is finding its way to Britain for doors, and British Columbia mill products should find a considerable opening there in the face of a great housing shortage, Mr. Whitaker concluded.

LEAVES FOR HOLLYWOOD

Armed with 2,500 feet of film he took around Banff and Lake Louise this summer, the former Universal camera expert is en route to Hollywood, where he will show his pictures to leading producers. The footage includes art and scenic studies of animals in Banff and Rocky Mountain National Parks, Feathered Storylines filmed during the Banff Indian festival, and numerous action pictures of cowboys and Mounted Police. With this "ammunition," Mr. Keele expects to bring several film companies to Canadian locations next summer.

"It would be a wonderful advertisement for Canada to be filmed extensively in pictures distributed over the whole world," he said. "I believe producers will jump at the chance to film their future outdoor pictures against the mighty background of the Canadian Rockies."

The reporter came idly into the office. "Well," said the editor, "what did our eminent statesman have to say?"

"Nothing."

"Well, keep it down to a column."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which scores of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics. From any drugstore, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pines, pour it into a 16 oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar or strained honey. Then you make 16 ounces of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it. Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germs which are the cause of the cough, and is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles. Do not accept a substitute for Pines. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Pretty Wedding Celebrated in Victoria West

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Victoria West, was the scene of a pretty wedding last night at 8 o'clock when Rev. J. S. Patterson united in marriage Mary Inez, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. P. Trowsdale, 631 Esquimalt Road, and Mr. Raymond Spouse, youngest son of Mr. T. W. Spouse, Craigflower Road, and of the late Mrs. Spouse. The bride is a popular nurse, having graduated from the Beaufort Nursing Home two years ago.

The church had been beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn-tinted foliage, and three floral arches had been erected down the centre aisle. There was a large congregation.

The service was fully choral and the choir sang "The Voice That Breathes O' Eden." During the signing of the register Miss McGowan sang "All Joy Be Thine," and Mr. Dallimore played the wedding march.

PRETTY BRIDE
Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in her gown of soft ivory satin. It had long sleeves inset with radium lace, and lace at the back of the neck, the train being edged with a large veil. Her embroidered net veil, which had been worn by her mother, was held to the head with a chaplet of pearls and orange blossom and fell in a long train. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and white leather, and wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Freda Spouse was the bridesmaid, wearing a pretty frock of orchid lace with a long-sleeved train, and a picture hat of mohair to match, trimmed with a large velvet bow. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations.

The groom and bridesmaid supported the bride. The ushers were Mr. Stewart McMillan supported Mr. Trowsdale. Mr. William Harker, Mr. Dan O'Brien and Mr. Robert Trowsdale.

RECEPTION FOLLOWS
A largely attended reception was held at Amphion Hall, which had been elaborately decorated with chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Spouse stood beneath a floral arch to receive the congratulations of their friends, and were assisted by Mrs. Trowsdale in a smart gown of black and white, and a smart black hat. The bride wore a gown of brown and beige, with a small felt hat to tone. She also wore an overcoat of soft green tweed with a collar of stone marten.

The supper table was arranged with small pink chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Spouse left later for a honeymoon in Vancouver and the surrounding cities, and will make their home at Esquimalt.

Great Singer Critically Ill In Australia

PREMANTLE, Australia, Nov. 4.—Dame Nellie Melba, famous operatic soprano, arriving here aboard the liner Cathay today, was so ill that her physicians forbade her landing.

The prima donna, whose home is in Coldstream, Victoria, Australia, has been indisposed for the last four days, it was said. She is sixty-four years old.

Dame Nellie Melba (Helen Porter Mitchell) was born in Richmond, near Melbourne, Australia, in 1866, and took the pseudonym of Melba after her debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto" in Brussels in 1887.

Her success as a vocalist was instantaneous. Her greatest success, probably, was in 1903, when she returned to Australia and sang before heads of the Colonial Governments and immense audiences. Her repertoire included leading French and Italian roles. She has been the recipient of numerous gifts and decorations from sovereigns and leaders. She was created a Dame of the British Empire in 1918 for her war work.

The right type of J.M. Manville Brake Linings prevents Grabbing Brakes. Do your brakes ever "grab" your car as if it had run into a brick wall—into a you release the pressure a little—and then grab again? Wrong lining is a likely reason. Your brakes were designed for a definite type of lining. Only that correct lining will keep them operating smoothly. That is the reason Johns-Manville makes several different kinds of brake linings, each lining designed for a definite type of car. When your brakes grab, drive in where you see this sign.

This sign identifies all Johns-Manville Brake Service Stations. At all of them you'll find a brake specialist. His expert knowledge is supported by the Johns-Manville Research Department, which was established to make an exact study of operating conditions for every type of brake equipment on every type of motor vehicle. Look for the sign when your brakes need attention. It is a definite guarantee of long-wearing, smooth-gripping, reliable brakes.

Fifth of November Anniversary Marks Gunpowder Treason

Today, November 5, marks the anniversary of an important event in English history—the discovery and prevention of the gunpowder treason. With the plot to blow up the House of Parliament the name of Guy Fawkes is most prominently associated, although he was not the originator of the scheme.

The originator of the plot was Robert Catesby, a gentleman of an ancient family, who at one period of his life had become a Protestant, but having been converted to the Catholic religion endeavored to atone for his apostasy by the fervor of a new zeal. Having resolved in his own mind a project for destroying, at one time, the King, Lords and Commons, he communicated it to Thomas Winter, a Catholic gentleman of Worcester-shire, who at first expressed great horror, but was afterwards induced to co-operate in the design.

It was Winter who procured the co-adjutorship of the celebrated Guido, or Guy Fawkes, who was a Catholic of good family, actuated by a spirit of ferocious fanaticism. Other confederates were gradually assumed, and, in a secluded house in Lambeth, on the south side of the river, the conspirators administered to the conspirators by Father Gerard, a Jesuit.

The priest, it is said, was kept in ignorance of the plot. One of the party, Thomas Percy, a distant relation of the Earl of Northumberland, and one of the gentlemen penitents at the Court of St. James, agreed to hire a house adjoining the building where the Parliament met, and it was resolved to effect the blowing of the legislature into the air by carrying a mine through the wall.

This was in the Spring of 1604, but various circumstances prevented the commencement of operations until the month of December of that year. Preparations were completed about the month of May, 1605, and the conspirators then separated until the final blow was struck. The time fixed for this was October 3, the day on which the Legislature should meet, but the opening of Parliament having been prorogued by the King to November 5, the latter date was finally resolved on.

Extensive preparations had been made during the preceding months, both towards the carrying out of the design and arranging the course to be followed after the destruction of the King and the legislative bodies had been accomplished.

The proposed successor of James was Prince Charles, afterwards Charles I., seeing that his elder brother Henry, Prince of Wales, would be expected to accompany his father to the House of Lords, and perish along with him. In the event of his being found impossible to gain possession of the person of Prince Charles, then it was arranged that his sister, Princess Elizabeth, should be seized and carried off to a place of security. Guy Fawkes was to ignite the gunpowder by means of a slow burning match.

Though the conspirators were made aware, through a servant of Lord Montague of the discovery of their plot, they nevertheless, by a singular situation continued their preparations, in the hope that the true nature of the scheme had not been unfolded. In this delusion it seems to have been the policy of the Government to maintain them to the last. Even after Bullock, the Lord Chamberlain, and Lord Montague had actually on the afternoon of Monday, November 4, visited the cellar beneath the House of Lords, and there discovered, in a corner, Guy Fawkes, who pretended to be a servant of Mr. Percy, the tenant of the vault.

At 2 o'clock the following morning, a party of soldiers under the command of Sir Thomas Knevett, a Westminster magistrate, visited the cellar, seized Fawkes at the door and carried him off to Whitehall, where in the royal bedchamber, he was interrogated by the King and council and from thence conveyed to the Tower.

On hearing of the arrest of Fawkes the remaining conspirators, with the exception of Tresham, fled from London to the place of rendezvous in Warwickshire, in the desperate hope of organizing a surrection. But such an expectation was vain. Pursued by the civil and militia authorities they were overtaken at the mansion of Holbeach, on the border of Staffordshire, where Catesby and three others, refusing to surrender, were slain. The remainder, taken prisoners in different places, were carried up to London, tried and condemned to death. Guy Fawkes, who came to be regarded as the leading actor in the conspiracy, leniency could not be expected under the circumstances and all the horrid ceremonies attending the deaths of the traitors were observed to the fullest extent. The executions took place on January 30 and 31 at the west end of St. Paul's churchyard.

Until 1859 a special service for November 5 formed part of the ritual of the English Book of Common Prayer, but was abolished. In former times the anniversary of burning an effigy of Guy Fawkes was a most important ceremony. The bonfire in Lincoln's Inn Field was conducted on a very magnificent scale. Among the juveniles the date is still remembered by various forms of outdoor amusement—that of soliciting money being confined, for the most part, to the elders.

The following lines constitute a time-honored rhyme:

"Remember, remember!
The fifth of November,
The gunpowder treason and plot;
There is no reason
Why the gunpowder treason
Should ever be forgot!"

ANOTHER SHIPMENT OF CHESTNUTS HERE

Shipments of Dates and Grapefruit Also Received by Wholesale-Salers

Another fresh shipment of chestnuts arrived at the local wholesale-salers on Monday, and these are finding a great demand among storekeepers of the city. At the same time a shipment of Hallowall dates arrived from Mesopotamia. These are said to be some of the finest dates that wholesalers have received for some time.

Other shipments that have come in since the end of last week are a mixed shipment of Florida and Texas grapefruit which was received yesterday, and a fresh shipment of California and Walla Walla lettuce. Lettuce shipments from the two latter places are coming in daily just now, as they are ready sellers, and wholesalers find a ready market for them with the retailers.

Fruit and vegetable canneries in Italy are now operating on full time.

Cousin Chatterer Interferes

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Claim all and then take what I can, I've sometimes found a paying plan.

—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Impy the black chipmunk and little Mrs. Impy, who was not black, but had a striped coat, as most chipmunks wear, had been out looking up food supplies. You see, it was their first fall of house-keeping and they were anxious to have a proper food supply for the coming winter. Being thrifty folk and coming of a thrifty family, they didn't propose to go hungry if hard work would prevent it.

They had discovered several nut-trees. The nuts were not yet ready to be harvested, but their was promise of a bountiful supply. "We won't have any trouble at all," declared Impy. "When these nuts drop we can fill our storehouses in almost no time. I hadn't supposed it would be so easy to get a supply of food for the winter."

"You haven't got it yet," said a sharp voice. "These nuts don't belong to you."

Impy and Mrs. Impy looked around to find Chatterer the Red Squirrel, who is, as you know, their cousin, scowling down at them from the bough of a tree near by. "If they aren't ours, whose are they?" demanded Impy.

"Mine!" replied Chatterer promptly. "They are all mine."

"Who says so?" cried little Mrs. Impy.

"I say so and that is enough," replied Chatterer. "These nuts are mine and no one else can have any. So you had better not come over here any more."

Now, Impy and little Mrs. Impy hadn't been out in the Great World long enough to know just what their rights were, but they felt sure that Chatterer was claiming a great deal more than he had any business to.

"I don't believe you," said Impy. "I don't believe you have any right to all those nuts."

Chatterer bounced to his feet and started down the tree trunk head first. "You get out of here, both of you!" he cried. "And do it in a hurry! I'll show you who owns these nuts!"

GIVEN JAIL TERM FOR BREAKING GAME LAW

Judge Lampman Reverses Police Court Decision and Hunters Get Forty-Five Days

Luigi Zarelli and Thomas Newell were sentenced by Judge Lampman, yesterday, to serve forty-five days in jail for violation of the Game Act. The offence charged against the two men was that they had in their possession a flash light while carrying a gun in the woods. The case was an appeal from the decision of Stipendiary Magistrate George Jay in the provincial police court. The men were acquitted in the police court.

The offence took place in the vicinity of Goldstream. Information was laid by Game Warden Gidley and McCall, who produced all the evidence in the case.

The two accused men were seen by the game warden proceeding along a trail in the woods between their car and a cabin which was located in the woods. No shots were heard by the warden. When the two accused were stopped they said they had no gun. This was found lying on the ground where they then had their flash light. The flash light was in the possession of one of them.

Judge Lampman felt that the case was one which violated the provisions of the Game Act and accordingly reversed the former decision.

Gordon Cameron appeared for the game authorities, while Stuart Henderson represented the two accused.

OPEN SEASON AT ROYAL ON MONDAY

On Monday next the Gordon Mc-Leod English players will open their second season at the Royal Victoria Theatre with a farce comedy entitled "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." This play is one of the most amusing comedies that has ever been written,
and has not only witty lines and amusing situations, but a real plot.
It played in London for over a year, and for an equal time in New York. Adapted from the French play of Alfred Savoir, and translated by Charlton Andrews, the play has lost nothing of its French sparkle and piquant wit. It is the story of a millionaire, who quickly gets tired of his wives, and gets rid of them by various methods of his own, quite harmless. And then he meets a young French woman who proves cleverer than he is, and in the end secures him as a permanent husband through the bonds of real love.
Lillian Christie will be seen as Mona, the clever eighth wife, a welcome reappearance in Victoria, where she is well known and admired.

RED CROSS IS STILL CARING FOR THE SICK

Outpost Nursing Stations Performing Many Expensive Tasks

DRIVE FOR $20,000
WILL ASSIST WORK

Since the dawn of peace and the end of war-time activities, the Red Cross Society has been engaged in a great peace-time effort to serve humanity. No appeal has been made to the public for financial aid in recent years, as the National Council at Toronto provided assistance from a fund of $1,000,000. This fund is exhausted, and each province must now be self-supporting.

For this reason, the Provincial Red Cross, in conjunction with the Armistice Period Committee, is asking for a fund of $20,000 from which each organization will take its quota for furtherance of the objects for which each exists. And in general, the public may gain a general idea of the service rendered by the Red Cross, a brief outline of its activities, with a few specific cases,
is appended.

The Red Cross is "a union of those who serve for those who suffer." It serves through the medium of the Outpost Nursing Service, Junior Red Cross, and workers who care for hospitals and institutions throughout the province.

JUNIOR BRANCH ACTIVE
The Junior Red Cross, which started in Canada, has spread all over the world, and today there are twelve million members in forty-three different countries.

It has simply justified its existence. By means of sales of war entertainments, and other methods,
the 2,310 Junior members in British Columbia raised $1,068 last year and donated it to the crippled children's fund. Since 1927 the Junior branch has provided free treatment for eighty-three little sufferers.

A little cripple, living near Victoria, who at the age of five was unable to walk, owing to leg deformity, was taken in hand by the Juniors and sent to the Solarium at their expense. She is now able to walk and attend school. She will require splints for some years, and the children are meeting the expense of periodical adjustment which natural growth makes necessary.

VICTORIANS ARE AIDED

Fies in the Red Cross office contain numerous letters of grateful thanks for assistance given by the Junior branch. A mother expresses thanks for prompt response on behalf of her boy whose operation expenses were defrayed. Edcombe Women's Institute acknowledges cheque for $100 towards cost of twenty-five tonsil patients.

In four years these young members of the world's greatest philanthropic organization have brought health and happiness to eighty-three children and earned the gratitude of families in every part of the province.

EDUCATION METHODS ARE QUESTIONED BY MINISTER

time he is six, but it is education
that would be almost impossible,
and certainly unwise, for a Government to undertake to give, and, in British Columbia at any rate, the people do not expect. Then again, there are certain portions of education that in our country the Government is not allowed to undertake. It is the duty of the Government to see that religious education is absolutely necessary to the formation of the soundest character. Under present conditions, however,
it would be practically impossible for the Government to give religious education, and it would probably be very dangerous for the Government to attempt it. The people of British Columbia know and understand the situation, and they have through their legislature, forbidden
the Government to give religious education in its schools.

Continuing, the minister said, "In the work of education, which consists, as we have already noted, of many parts. There are some portions which are properly and peculiarly the work of certain individuals or organizations. Parents are the proper people to see that during the first six years of life the child is given a sound health or high character are laid in the minds and bodies of the children. I do not imagine that the people of British Columbia would tolerate for one moment a change from the present procedure, which leaves the child to the care of his parents for the first six years of his life. The parent would resent very pointedly any attempt the Government might make to direct a child's training during those first six years along lines the Government might lay down."

RELIGIOUS TRAINING

"Religious training is properly the work for religious teachers and organizations, working in conjunction with the parents. Again, I say, the people of British Columbia would strongly resent any attempt on the part of the Government to take up the work of religious education.

"Industrial education is a fitting work for those who are conversant with industrial operations, and who know what is required in those young people who take up industrial life.

"There is a special part also, for the Government, a part in which the Government is particularly interested. This part of education concerns the responsibilities and duties of citizenship—those things in which the Government comes in direct contact with the individual.
This is the part of education that fits young people to become responsible members, not only of the community in which they live, but of the nation or people to which they belong.

CITIZENSHIP DUTIES

"Since the Government is the authority which knows and understands, enforces and protects the rights, duties and privileges that apertain to citizenship, it is surely the Government's province to see that education regarding citizenship is supplied to the young people of its country, and if it is not supplied in any other way it would seem to be the duty of the Government to take up the work as a co-operative undertaking on behalf of all the people, and at the public expense."

The Minister went on:

"Education in citizenship also consists of many parts. The Government's viewpoint in regard to education must, to a very great extent, be materialistic, for a Government as such can not deal with beliefs, thoughts or ideas. It can, generally speaking, take cognizance only of material things and overt actions.
It has no right whatever to interfere with the opinions or ideals, whether moral, religious, political or otherwise, of its people, so long as those opinions or ideals do not lead their holders to break the law of the land, and even then it is the infraction of the law rather than the holding of opinions or ideals that the Government can take cognizance of.
Seeing then, that a Government is chiefly concerned with practical things, it is rather for practical than for idealistic purposes that it enters upon the work of education, and its great object in that work is to make the work of education, and its great object in that work is to make every young person as big an asset to the nation as possible, both in character and achievement.

DUTY OF GOVERNMENT

"A Government should, therefore,
provide, so far as it is a proper agent for so doing, such education as will help the young person (1) to support himself and those dependent upon him, by his own efforts, in order that he may not become a charge upon the public; (2) to be a law-abiding citizen in order that he may not by infraction of the laws of the country become a drain on its resources and a detriment to other citizens; (3) to realize the responsibility that lies upon him as a member of the community to share in and perform to the best of his ability the duties of citizenship, such as bearing his part in the general expenditure undertaken by the Government for the benefit of the people as a whole, taking his share in performing public duties, and doing his best to make his own life and the lives of those with whom he comes in touch peaceful, prosperous and happy. These may be other phases of citizenship that should be emphasized, but those mentioned are enough to show that even the portion of education that falls to the share of the Government is in itself
divisible into its component parts.

USEFUL LEARNING

"In this portion of the education of its young people, Government will, of course, take into consideration the vocations and professions which there is scope in its country. It would be foolish for a Government to spend its money and the time of its young people in training them to follow vocations that are not called for in, or are not suitable to, the country in which they live.

"In such event the Government's object, to make its young people as big an asset to the country as possible, would not have been reached.
In the first case, they would become an asset to some other country; in the second case, for the time being at any rate they would be a liability;
and in the third case, they would be very likely to become a permanent tax on the resources of the country and a detriment to its citizens. The character of education provided by a Government should, therefore,
be such as would help to prepare
young people for the walks of life that are likely to open up before them in their own country.

"From what I have said," added
Hon. Mr. Hinchliffe, "it is apparent, therefore, that whatever else a Government might contribute to the education of the youth of its country it should see that its young people receive such training and instruction as will help them to make their living in the ordinary vocations and walks of life that exist in their own land."

IMPORTANT QUERIES

"He had been asked, he said, "Is the education of the young people of British Columbia, which is largely provided and paid for by the Government, such education as would satisfy the conclusion at which we have just arrived?"

"I am not going to deal with this question at this time, although I have a great deal of information in regard to it that I could lay before you. At some time in the near future I may possibly have the opportunity of treating it in a more comprehensive manner than I could do tonight. In the meantime, I am going to put the matter before you
in this way in order to induce you
to think about it:

"What education are you having provided for your son?"

"Have you a definite object in view, a definite life work for your boy? You should have, in the interests of the boy, if he has reached the age of fourteen or fifteen years.

"Is that object you have in view a life work in the vocations that British Columbia can offer now, or is it likely to offer by the time your boy reaches that stage in life when he must earn his own living?"

"Is your objective a life work for your son that will require him to leave the country in order to take up that work, or that will lead him into a blind alley, or leave him an industrial non-entity?"

"The honest answers you can give to these questions will indicate if you are being fair to your Government, to the rest of the people of the province, and to the one who is interested above all others—your boy himself."

DIAMOND DIGGERS IN SOUTH AFRICA INVADE FORBIDDEN DISTRICT

By ANTHONY BELL

(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa,
Nov. 4.—About 300 prospectors from Transvaal have entered Namaqualand in search of diamonds and are defying the Government to remove them. Namaqualand is a prohibited area for diamond digging, as all rights are vested in the state, a fact which has caused acute dissatisfaction among diggers in the poorer fields of Transvaal.

The group of prospectors trekked
across the Kalbari desert on foot.
They have been challenged by the police, who, however, are not strong enough to deal with a band of 300 armed and determined men. Buchenberg is the present encampment of the prospectors.

EACH BRANCH OF BANK MUST EARN ITS RENT

In Majority of Cases It Is Several Years Before Branch Is Profitable Proposition

"How do banks finance new branch buildings, and how are the costs of such edifices apportioned?" Financial Post answers this question as follows:

The answer is a simple one, for every Canadian branch manager, in addition to being a banker, is a tenant of the institution to which he belongs. That is to say the branch is charged so much rental each year by head office, this rent being a fixed percentage of the cost of the building. In most cases, in addition to paying rent it also has to pay its own taxes, insurance, upkeep, heating and so forth, although in some banks the rental charged by head office is a gross figure which includes all these items.

Thus while clients gaze in awe and envy at his beautiful office, the bank manager may be worrying how he is going to pay his rent.

USUALLY RENT FIRST
Of course conditions differ substantially as between the city and village and between different parts of the country, but by and large the usual procedure of a bank in establishing a new branch in an urban territory is to rent a small store or building which is renovated to suit requirements. At the same time, the bank will in all probability purchase a piece of property in a choice location adjacent to its rented branch, and then if business develops in the way that is hoped, the rented branch will be abandoned and a new structure built by the bank itself on its own piece of property.

Sometimes of course, if a nice business has been built up in the rented building, it will not be long before the branch will have sufficient business to pay for its new structure. In the majority of cases, however, it is several years before a new branch starting out in its own premises, can be considered a paying proposition. One leading bank, for instance, considers on the average that it will be at least three years before a bank can be expected to pay its way. Some branches never actually pay their way due to exceptionally heavy overhead or other special circumstances.

FOR DEPRECIATION
The rental charge made to a bank manager by the head office differs according to the practice of each institution. As a rule, however, the fair rental is considered to be 5 per cent on the actual cost of the building. One large bank makes each manager pay in addition to rental, a certain sum each year as sinking fund, so that over a period of years the property becomes entirely paid for out of revenue. All banks make some provision for depreciation, several banks, for instance, charging a certain sum off each year, so that the rental load gets lighter for the manager as the building depreciates. In these cases the depreciation load is carried by head office, although depreciation of office furnishings and equipment is borne by the individual manager.

In addition, of course, to this charge, the manager will be responsible for paying his own taxes, insurance, heating and upkeep expenses, and may collect any rentals that may accrue from any part of the building rented to outsiders.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY
The ideal way for a branch to make money is to have its deposits and loans approximately balance. If there is a surplus of deposits such as would occur in branches in the outlying districts of a big city, these are sent in to the head office, but the interest which the bank receives from head office is, as a rule, about 2 per cent less than would be received if the manager could loan this money direct to customers himself. Similarly if a branch has insufficient money to meet the loan demands of its customers, it would have to pay somewhat more for the accommodation. If it comes from head office than if it could be obtained direct from customers at a 3 per cent rate.

SCOT FREE
 At first glance, this interesting phrase would seem to be related to something Scotch, but to the initiated, its true history goes far beneath this misleading indication. Scot free, as everybody knows, means absolutely free, or, without penalty of any kind. So, we say, quite properly of a man accused of a certain offence, that he went scot free.
 Investigation into the forerunners of this word is enlightening. It reveals the intriguing fact that we have "scot" literally from the Icelandic "skot," meaning payment, punishment, contribution or tax. With this information before us, it is perfectly clear just how this phrase came to have the same it enjoys—without at all involving, of course, any reference to Scotland or the Scotch.

PET POODLE CAUSES DEATHS OF MEMBERS OF NEWARK FAMILY

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 4.—A pet poodle yesterday caused the deaths of three members of one family by gas poisoning. The bodies of Michael Moore, fifty-six; his wife, Katherine, fifty-five, and their daughter, Mary, seventeen, were found in their apartment. In the kitchen was the body of the dog, which had gnawed a rubber hose from a gas heater.

The Other Bullet

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

CHAPTER XXXII

Fitzgerald was not dead. In fact, he was sitting up in bed, his head wound about with a turban of bandages, listening with patient boredom to the rise and fall of his wife's voice as she sat beside him reading aloud.

At the moment he was wondering if he could knock the book out of her hand and ascribe his violence to the lingering effects of concussion. But it wouldn't do any good—she would only pick it up again.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was firm in her generous attention to do other people good. She had given up a luncheon party in order to sit beside her husband and cheer him by reading light fiction.

To be sure, Lee, delirious light fiction, but the doctor had said that he must have nothing exciting, so he had begged in vain to be allowed to go over the notes of a case that had been postponed until his recovery, and had not even won the compromise of Wellman's "Art of Cross-Examination."

Mrs. Fitzgerald had held out against a book sure to be full of words that she had never heard of, and couldn't pronounce.

"This is such a sweet story," she had said with gentle persistence.

"I'm sure you'll just love it," Fitzgerald had suffered his wife's ministrations in grim silence for an hour when Peter thrust his head around the door.

"I happened to be out this way, and thought I'd look in," Peter said maliciously. "They told me downstairs that you were able to see visitors."

Peter and Fitzgerald met occasionally at trials in the superior court, but Fitzgerald greeted him with a warmth out of all proportion to the extent of their acquaintance.

"Come in! Come in!" he said cordially. "How's the life of crime on the Herald these days?"

Mrs. Fitzgerald closed her book, holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps, and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's a low chub—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man.

But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freely.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground he stood under had shifted. He had a sinking feeling that he had been deceived. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In all this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well-known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Mortimer's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of necessity, made strange associates. Might the case be tied up, in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eyelid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it that might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I heard the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse, as sure as God made little apples."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-nod to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think quick, Captain Flagg, think quick!" he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of bums. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

"You did have the ring then?"

"Of course. But you came mighty close to giving me away. I will say you played up nobly, though."

"Do you mind telling me where you got it?"

"Not in the least. But what's the story?"

"There isn't any story—yet. But I'm not anxious to find out where that ring came from. It lies up with something I'm working on. It's led me on the wildest sort of goose-chase already, and when you said you'd never heard of it, I thought I was lucky."

In his relief that Lammie and Ryder had told the truth, Peter's spirits sky-rocketed upward.

"Well, the gentleman I got it from won't lead you much of a chase, I can promise you; but as to where it came from, that's another matter. Maybe, you didn't happen to hear of the case of People versus Callahan?"

Peter shook his head.

"It didn't amount to much. I guess your regular courthouse man covered it. Callahan held up a dance hall and got five years to life for armed robbery. He's just been sent over, since I've been in the hospital. In fact, I was on my way to court, the day he was convicted, when I had my smash-up and landed here. By the way, you just about saved my life by coming in today. I began to wish my wife had collected my life insurance after listening to an hour of that love-drivel she was reading. I've always maintained that reading about was the last infirmity of feeble minds. But you must have thought I'd succumbed to the strain or had concussion or something when I denied playing poker."

Peter smiled enigmatically. There was no need to tell Fitzgerald what he really had thought.

"I take it you defended Callahan, he suggested."

"All the defense there was. Clarence Darrow himself couldn't have got him off. He had a criminal record a yard long. But his wife's a decent enough woman—thought he had a job as night-watchman somewhere—and she asked me to do what I could for him. There wasn't much in it for me, of course. Somehow burglars and the like never do seem to save up any money."

A few minutes later a nurse dashed hastily around the corner and halted Peter, a warning finger at her lips. For the first time in many days, Peter was whispering.

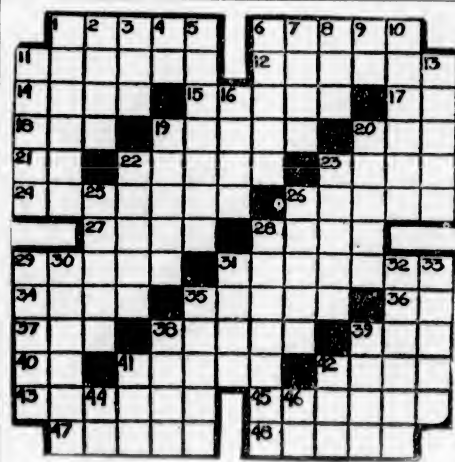

"(To Be Continued)

A tourist who was traveling through the Kalahari desert happened to meet an old inhabitant and his son.

"It looks as though it's going to rain."

"Well, I hope so; not so much for myself as for my boy. I've seen it rain."
